Ralph:

The fact that I am remiss in thanking you for my amazing time at your site should not diminish at all the admiration and in fact awe that I felt with your accomplishments. The pulse of that base beats loudly which is a tribute to you and the many dedicated people who go about their various functions unheralded to the world but also little appreciated within their own service because of the security constraints. You should be proud.

Thanks again for your wonderful hospitality and attention.
